

Ignacio Calvo - University Clinician, Veterinary Orthopaedics, University of Glasgow

Speaker – 16.30-17.00 Friday 24 September, Management of cranial cruciate disease in dogs –
what should we do?

Ignacio (Nacho) Calvo graduated from Cordoba University (Spain) in 2000. After working for three years in Madrid University, he moved to Glasgow University Veterinary School, where he completed a Small Animal Internship (2004-2005). After that he worked for a year for the People's Dispensary for Sick Animals (PDSA) in London, before returning to Glasgow University (2006-2009) as a Resident in Small Animal Surgery (Orthopedics).

In 2009 Nacho was awarded the RCVS Certificate in Small Animal Surgery (CertSAS), and he was promoted to University Clinician in Veterinary Orthopedics at Glasgow University. His main clinical and research interests are orthopedics in cats, tibial tuberosity advancement (TTA) and arthroscopy.