

Patrick Pollock – Senior lecturer in equine surgery at the Weipers Centre Equine Hospital, University of Glasgow

Speaker; 10.00-10.30 First aid for equine wounds in mixed practice

Graduated from the University of Glasgow in 1998, worked in mixed general practice in north east Scotland before undertaking an internship and residency at University College Dublin. Worked as a lecturer in large animal surgery in Dublin for several years before moving to the University of Copenhagen. Currently Senior Lecturer in Equine Surgery at the Weipers Centre Equine Hospital, University of Glasgow. Clinical interests include minimally invasive surgery, standing surgery, wound healing and poor performance.

European and RCVS Recognised Specialist in Equine Surgery, holder of the ECVS Diploma in Large Animal Surgery.

Other interests include working equid veterinary medicine and clinical training in the developing world, marine mammal and wildlife medicine. Keen bagpiper, bee keeper and recently taken up the fiddle!