THE ROYAL
(DICK) SCHOOL
OF VETERINARY STUDIES

The Royal (Dick) School of Veterinary Studies, regarded as one of the world's most innovative and influential centres for clinical care and student education, is part of the University of Edinburgh's College of Medicine and Veterinary Medicine, which ranks amongst the top 15 biomedical research centres world-wide. The Roslin Institute is incorporated with the School and together they undertake to benefit society and the environment by educating veterinary surgeons to join public and professional healthcare teams; and to advance veterinary and comparative medicine through research into disease and disease processes to improve the health and welfare of animals and humans.
