Don’t think it won’t happen to you:

Whilst working at a farm on EMS, a student member was kicked in the face by a horse. This was in the UK, and she had to go to an NHS hospital for several days.

The EMS Insurance covered £50 per night for the hospitalisation. In addition, she was left with a facial scar and the EMS Insurance paid a £10,000 lump sum. Fortunately, she was able to resume studies and is now a qualified vet. However, if the situation had been worse and she wasn’t able to work as a vet, the policy would have paid £50,000 lump sum.

Three things you need to know about insurance for your EMS

1. Has your employer got your back?

Before your EMS, it’s important to ask your employer if they have the following insurance in place to protect you:

- Public Liability
  When you’re acting on behalf of the business, this covers the cost of a claim made by a member of the public for injury or damage to their property.

- Employers’ Liability
  If you are injured at work, most insurance policies held by employers would treat people on a work experience scheme as an employee.

- Professional Indemnity
  This covers the cost of a claim relating to professional services, e.g. if an animal is injured. As you will be assisting qualified vets under their supervision, most indemnity cover held by vets will provide you with the protection required.

EMS Insurance is automatically included as part of your BVA student membership. During your EMS or study activity, it provides you with the following cover:

- Personal Accident Cover
  This provides you with ‘lump sum’ compensation if you sustain certain major injuries or disablements as a result of an accident.

- Personal Liability
  This will help to defend you if you’re accused of being personally responsible for injuring another person or causing damage to property. This is the kind of cover many people would have as an additional part of their home insurance. However, as many students wouldn’t have home insurance, this cover helps to close that gap.

- Travel Insurance
  To be clear, your EMS Insurance won’t cover medical expenses. That’s where travel insurance comes in. Many policies won’t cover injury or illness whilst working abroad, so it’s important that you arrange a travel policy to cover this.

- Liability Cover
  As with EMS in the UK, you should make sure that your work placement still provides Public Liability, Employers’ Liability and Professional Indemnity. In the past, we have seen situations where placements abroad haven’t given such protection under their insurance.
